Do you feel dull, innguid, low-spirited, life-less, and indescribably miserable, both physi-cally and mentally; experience a sense of fuliness or bloating after eating, or of "gone-ness," or emptiness of stomach in the moen-ing, tongue coated, bitter or bad taste in mouth, irregular appetite, dizziness, frequent headaches, bitured eyesight, "floating specks" before the eyes, nervous prostration or ex-haustion, irritability of temper, bot flushes, alternating with chilly sensations, sharp, bitting, transient pains here and there, cold time, transient pains here and there, cold-ting, transient pains here and there, cold-ting, transient pains was cultured, or of impend-ing calamity?

Their Universal Prevalence, Danger ous Character and How they Live and Are Killed.

The Germans consume large amounts of uncooked pork, and often get living animals called trichinm into their blood, which cause the most terrible death. Americans draw in the germs of disease and death with every breath. Malaria, misams, sewer gets and the thousand poisons in the air, in food and in water are at war with health and life all the while. The blood that circulates in human voins is composed of numbers of small corpuscles that resemble animals and when anything poisonous gets into the blood it becomes just like stagnant water, full of living animals that feed upon each other and upon the blood itself. And yet not one person in fifty is free from blood poisoning in some form. Every moment of the life, whether awake or asleep a million poisonous animals, invisible to the naked eye, are feeding upon the very elements that make and sustain life.

These are facts—they are solemn truths and they demand the most serious attention. These germs must be killed; they must be annihilated. But how! Prof. Austin Flint of Bollevue Hospital College, New York, says: "The judiclous use of alcohole stimulants is one of the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicula visual for the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicula visual for the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicula visual for the surface of the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicula visual population of the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicula visual population of the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicula visual population of the striking characteristics of the striking charact careland, Tuscarawas Valley at heeling fixility asyco, defendants, heeling fixility asyco, defendants, he object of this sult is to attach and subject to he object of the plantid's claim against the distant, the Cierciand, Tuscarawas Valley & celies kailway Company, for seventy doflars (60), with interest thereon from January 1, 1881, it systems, and the costs of this auti, so much may be necessary for that purpose, of the money the said railway company, now in the hands of general receiver of this Court, awaiting the many of the control of the court, awaiting the said railway company, is a foreign corporation of the court of the court, awaiting the said the cleveland, Tuscarawas Valley & said to the state of the court, and they company is a foreign corporation to the plantin; by his solicitors, this order of idealing is extracted the state of west Virginia, and they being served with process in this suit, on mode the plantin; by his solicitors, this order of idealing is entered against them, and it is order of the court of the c day were unusually interesting, because for the first time women voted at them. So far as the number of votes cast by women was concerned, the experimen eems to have worked successfully. In ed of "two prominent women who have offered money to colored women to vote for Neeley," the Democratic candidate for Mayor. The Leavenworth correspondent of the Kansse City Times declared, on the other hand, that Mrs. Holen M. Cougar, whom he called "an Indiana importation," had been "spreading wicked slanders against the fair fame of Leavenworth's daughters." The specific allegation was that Mrs. Cougar, a womansuffrage advocate, had made the "extraordinary statement that the upper stratum of social life in Leavenworth was frightfully licentious, owing to the presence of of social life in Leavenworth was fright-fully licentious, owing to the presence of ithe military post at Fort Leavenworth, with its large number of army officera."

WOMEN VOTERS IN KANSAS. The New Law Does Not Seem to be a Puri-fying Force in Municipal Politics. New York Sun.

Of course, the women were chiefly instereated in the temperance question and the question of the social evit. At Leavenworth their Election Committee issued an address to their "dear sisters," in which, after saying that "se women, we will leave the discussion of financial affairs to men voters," they proceed to attack the "open salcons, with their attendant evils. "open salcons, with their attendant evils. and the licensed brothele that are and have been permitted by our City Administration." At a meeting of 300 women, held in the Congregational church of the town, Mrs. Gougar presented the report of a committee of ladies who had visited the disreputable houses, and accompanied it with aseries of resolutions as to the abatement of the social evil. The resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, demand that all women "who persist in their evil course shall be promptly arrested and fined, not to exceed $1 a day for ten days, with the privilege of leaving the city within the time." In the event of their refusal to go they are to be sent up in the county jail "for a term sufficient to offset the fine." The arrest and heavy fine of men frequenting disreputable houses are demanded, and the publication in the daily paper and the state of the "fall and proved the form of the such men."

Yet it seems that by the sid of the somen the Sembles of the some of the second of the sec open salcons, with their attendant evils.

Yet it seems that by the aid of the women the Republican candidate for Mayor of Lawrence was elected by the largest majority ever given to a Mayor of the town, although allegations of immorality had been made against him. In general, the introduction of women voters has been to increase the Republican vote, but otherwise it does not appear to have produced any considerable change.

But even while the excitement of this thrilling speech was upon them the pallid man rose and said he might as well mention that the reign of the bottle was during his first year of life, and it was always filled with milk. Temperance meetings don't like sells, and the meek speaker was bustled out in a hurry, while the congregation were requested to sing "Sparkling and bright, in its liquid light, is water in our glasses."

Root Orops for Poultry. Root Orope for Poultry.

Exchange.

Too much concentrated lood is given, as a rule, to poultry, which is often more detrimental than beneficial. If such food as cooked potatoes, turnips, carrots, and parsnips could be fed, the hens would keep in better health and produce a larger number of eggs. Ducks can be raised cheaply on such food, and they grow rapidly and fatten readily. It is of course known that cooked roots consist largely of water, and that the hens must cat large quantities in order to derive the elements necessary to the support of the body and to produce eggs, but it is not implied that goots are to be fed exclusively, but rather as an adjunct to the regular diet. It is best to feed roots in the morning. They should be cooked, mashed, a little salt added, and the mess sprinkled with meal. The hens will eat their fill of the warm mess, and as

The hens will eathler fill of the warm mess, and as at will be quickly digested they will hunt and scratch, thus taking exercise, At night a plentiful supply of all the grain they can eat, with warm quarters, will keep them in good condition. Cooked meat may be given with the roots with advantage, while green stuff in any form will always be acceptable.

Hannibal Hamilin is not a man of wealth. No "boodie" has ever stuck to his hands. He lives plainly, unostentatiously. His children are grown up to manhood and gone forth from the paternal roof. On every public occasion on which he appears he is plainly the favorite, if cheers and hearty greetings mean anything. He is seen in the streets of Bangor on the coldest days of winter in his clawhammor coat, without the unnecessary adjunct of an overcoat. He walks miles at a stretch with the alacrity of a boy, just for a "constitutional." He is found in the huts of the poor and humble, smoking an old T.

D. pipe in company with the head of the household. He knows everybody and everybody knows him. On the load of the lumberman he is often seen mounted, chatting merrily with the driver, who is so proud of his companionship that he will talk about it for a year afterward. He never forgets a face and rarely a name, and generally can tell you more of your family history than you know yourself.

UNTAMED SHREWS. The Shrew Considered from a Purely Philo

Attempts to connect physiological appearances with a certain stamp of charac-ter are as old as Aristotle and Plate. Mr. seems to have worked successfully. In twenty-six towns 12,500 women had registered, and in Leavenworth and Lawrence, where the contests were most excling, they were greatly agitated over the issues involved, or which they imagined to be involved, in the election of municipal cillers, so that in Leavenworth, out of a total registration of about 7,000, there were 2,673 women, while in Lawrence one-half of the registration was of women. But at Atchison, one of the largest towns of the State, only 336 women were registered, nearly one-third of whom were colored, the disposition to take advantage of their new privilege being everywhere more general among the colored than the white women.

The introduction of women to the ballot does not, however, seem to have the expected result of purifying the election methods, at least in such contests as those of Leavenworth and Lawrence. In the papers of Leavenworth are resenting the different parties charges of corruption were freely exchanged before the election and even women were accused of lying and bribery. The Leavenworth Times asserted that the names had been obtained of "two prominent women who have offered money to colored women to vote for Neeley," the Democratic candidate poor and uneven. That marriages

Mr. Jordan lays some stress on the fact that in shrewish men and women the skin is clear, transparent and pigmentless, often accompanying very pretty features. The nails are inclined to be thin and weak, easily bent or torn, the hair thin and scanty, the eyebrows especially being poor and uneven. That marriages should ever be arranged by a mutual choice of shrows with shrews and non-shrews with non-shrews appears to be very hypothetical; still Mr. Jordan is not without some hope that future years may bring such a result. The characters of shrews and non-shrews may be summed up in a few words. Shrews are superficial, restless, consequential; having no deep sympathies, affections, passions, or emotions; nearly always moral, not from an inherent sense of duty, but from the desire to be considered respectable. They are apt to be discontented at home, but to shine in society, of which they often form very useful members. Non-shrews cannot precisely be described as the direct antithesis, but they have deep emotions, sympathies, affections and passions. Non-shrews are more easily led into crime, sympathies, affections and passions. Non-shrews are more easily led into crime, owing to their deeper feelings. It is not incompatible with non-shrewishness to shine in society or to be voluble and passionate, since a shrewish person does not feel deeply enough to be really angry.
